A new video communications solution that brings the power of Vimeo to large organizations

Vimeo, the world's leading professional video platform, today introduced a new solution for video communications at work: Vimeo Enterprise. Vimeo Enterprise enables large organizations to manage and share live and on-demand video content with teams and customers, at scale and all on one platform. Today's launch unlocks advanced features and services like user-level analytics, single-sign-on (SSO) authentication and professional-grade live production services, adding more control, security and support to the platform's industry-leading product suite.

"Organizations of all sizes use video to engage employees and build customer loyalty, but we've seen that large companies have complex and specific requirements when managing video at scale. Vimeo is a market-tested platform trusted by millions and is uniquely positioned to solve the growing video needs of the modern organization," said Anjali Sud, CEO, Vimeo. "Vimeo Enterprise combines the best of our platform—powerful tools, ease of use, and the highest quality viewing experience—with new enterprise-grade capabilities that give organizations full control and support to power their business with video."

Customers like Deloitte, Axalta and Unilever already take advantage of Vimeo's best-in-class live video offering to reach their global workforces, and now Vimeo Enterprise offers companies like these advanced features to connect with their employees and market to their customers, securely and with ease. Specifically, Vimeo Enterprise includes:

- Added security with single-sign-on: Account access and videos are protected and in administrators' control with features like SSO authentication, password protection, domain whitelisting, embed restrictions, and private workspaces.
- Secure, branded video showcases: Develop and launch unlimited white-label video content sites, that teams can access and interact with securely.
- In-depth user analytics: Measure employee engagement with user-level analytics to see who tunes in—and who doesn't—and understand how they're viewing and interacting with content.
- Dedicated support and services: Access to white glove on-boarding services, 24/7 support and uptime guarantees, plus exclusive account management and the ability to utilize Vimeo's award-winning live production services for a no-fail event of any size.
